

BOMBS AWAY FOR SOCCER

Men's soccer team adds two wins to winning streak this weekend with rapid fire shots.
PAGE 9

The Oakland Post

SHINE SHEDS LIGHT ON YEATS

Free Press publisher Neal Shine enlightens crowd, shares love for Yeats in Enigma series.
PAGE 5

Vol. XXVI, No. 8 The Oakland Sail, Inc.

October 30, 1991

Oakland University, Rochester, MI 48309-4401

Briefly

Students rights

The Office of Student Life is holding a lecture, "Surviving College: Students Rights," today from 12-1 p.m. in rooms 126 and 127 of the Oakland Center. Speakers include, Dean of students David Herman and Assistant Dean of Students Nancy Schmitz.

Communism lecture

The Center for International Programs and the Department of Modern Languages and Literature is presenting a lecture, "China's Response to the Failure of Soviet Communism," on Nov. 6 from noon-1:30 p.m. in Gold Rooms A and B of the Oakland Center. Professor of Chinese and Chinese Studies at OU, John Marney, is the featured speaker. The lecture is free and open to the public.

Society to meet

The first meeting of the Global Preservation Society will take place Oct. 31, in the faculty lounge in the Oakland Center. Students and faculty are encouraged to join the society. For more information, call 731-1518.

Poetry reading

A poetry reading, sponsored by the English Club, will be held Nov. 1 at 8 p.m. in the Abstention room of the OC. Everyone is invited to attend, to read their own poetry, poetry from their favorite authors, or just to sit back and listen.

Ski and skate sale

A ski and skate sale, sponsored by 19 community schools and the Rochester PTA Council, will take place Nov. 9 from 10-2 p.m. at Adams High School. The sale will feature thousands from hundreds of local skiers and several ski shops, and will buy or sell new or used equipment. Anyone interested may drop off equipment on Nov. 8, from 5-8 p.m., and pick up equipment Sat. Nov. 9 from 2:30-4:30 p.m. Rochester Adams High School is located at the corner of Adams and Tienken roads.

Fund Drive

Rikki Schwartz, OU Environmental health and safety coordinator, and this year's chairperson for the OU's United Way Fund Drive announced that this year's campaign will come to an end soon. Pledge cards will be distributed during the first week of November. Schwartz requests that cards be returned to her office no later than Nov. 15. Call 370-4196 for further information.

Mutant Ball

North Cass Community Union is sponsoring its second annual benefit Mutant Ball to support environmental education on Oct. 31 at Alvin's Finer Delicatessen on Cass Avenue in Detroit.

Poetry by Jim Gustafson, Trinidad Sanchez, Jr., and Kalleema Hasan will be featured. Music by Strange Bedfellows, KURU, Monster Bait, and Signs of Life. For more information call Paul at 833-6869.

Empty house awaits new president

By MARGARET O'BRIEN
Editor in Chief

The university-owned house where former OU President Joseph Champagne lived until his July departure remains empty, shuttered and on the back burner during the search for a new president.

Interim President John DeCarlo said the university will retain the house, allowing the next president to consider it. DeCarlo said that although the decision was not his, he did not feel the board would require the candidate to live in the home at 2509 Munster.

DeCarlo said that he has raised the issue with the Board of Trustees, for their consideration, but no decisions have been made yet.

"Rather than sell it, at this juncture we are keeping our options open," DeCarlo said.

The university purchased the house, located in the Meadow Brook Valley subdivision near the intersection of Adams and Avon Roads, for $195,000 in 1986. The house is wholly-owned by the university which is exempt from property tax.

DeCarlo, who is receiving a partial housing allowance during his tenure as president, said he opted not to move to the Munster house because of the short time projected for the search.

"They could find a new president next week or next month, so it would be ridiculous for me to move. It would be like living in a moving van," DeCarlo said.

In 1986, the Board of Trustees purchased the house in order to convert Sunset Terrace, the former presidential residence, to a 13,000-foot conference center.

According to DeCarlo, Champagne proposed the switch saying it was too formal and remotely located for a family residence.

"He didn't think it was place to live and raise small children. They were too removed — looking for more of a neighborly setting," DeCarlo said.

DeCarlo said that he believes the board has a few options including considering a housing allowance, keeping the Munster home, or returning the presidential residence to Sunset Terrace, which is managed as an extension of Meadow Brook

The university-owned home at 2509 Munster previously lived in by former OU president Joseph Champagne.

Hall, was originally expected to pay off the cost of the presidential house as well as become self-sup-

See HOUSE page 3

Ghoulish greetings

83 pumpkins lit up Wilson Hall last Wednesday after art students carved a variety of faces.

Date rape: The untold story

By DEBORAH DZIEWIT
News Editor

Editors' note: The names of Kelly and Tom are fictitious; the story is not. This is first in a two part series about date rape.

Two years ago, Kelly looked forward to a Saturday night date. She met Tom in an OU Introduction to China class and after a couple of weeks of talking, he finally asked her out to an off-campus party.

A few of her friends were going to the same party, so she thought—why not. She said yes.

"I thought that going to a party on a first date was a good idea," Kelly said. "If things didn't turn out, I could always hang out with my friends who were going to the same party and go home with them."

Kelly said he came to her door that night looking good—jeans, great sweater that brought out the blue in his eyes. She spent a lot of time on her appearance before that date.

"I spent an hour on my hair, getting it to curl just so down my back and getting my bangs to stand up. I went out and bought a new black mini dress that hugged me tight—with black stockings and black heels—I thought I looked hot."

On the way, they talked about classes, music, friends and hometowns. She thought they clicked. At the party they drank beer, danced slow and fast and laughed a lot.

"We had a lot of fun and I thought to myself, I hope we do this again," she said.

Tom drove Kelly back to the dorm, walked her up to her room and asked if he could come in for awhile.

She said yes. "I put on some music and we sat on the bed talking—soon talking led to kissing and kissing led to heavy touching. I wanted it to stop," Kelly said.

See RAPE page 3

Outside help needed to fix lines

By TRISTA ROBERTS
Special Writer

Wilson Hall and Graham Health Center continue to go without heat because of a high temperature hot water line that broke two weeks ago.

According to Grover Tigie, heating plant supervisor, it will probably be another week to 10 days before the line will be fixed.

Three outside contractors are currently working on the pipelines. The Michigan Mechanical Abatement Company began working on Oct. 15, to remove asbestos from the piping. ATC arrived at the same time. It is a company that monitors the removal of asbestos to make sure that chemicals released from it don't poison the surrounding air.

The third company, Pipe Systems, Inc., were called in two days after the other two companies to actually fix the piping.

The original plan was to fix the two breaks in the line in two weeks, but now the line will be completely replaced from the area near the south doors of Wilson Hall crossing the street to a manhole between North Foundation Hall and the Oakland Center, according to Tigie.

Tigie said the original piping, which was put in a year or two before the building of Wilson Hall in 1968, has never been replaced.

When asked about the cost of the new piping, Tigie said, "I've been trying to keep away from a dollar figure, but at this time I'd estimate the cost to be around $35,000 to $50,000."

Students and employees of the heatless buildings say they haven't really noticed a difference in the temperature.

Members of the Meadow Brook Theater box office, which is located on the north end of Wilson Hall said that none of the patrons have been complaining, either. In fact, the theater is usually too warm, so the slight drop in temperature has actually been welcomed.

Some employees and faculty members have been using space heaters, although this is supposed to be against OU policy. Yolanda Jennings, a secretary at Graham Health Center said that the space heaters were helping a lot and that there were few complaints about the lack of heat.

"Last Monday was really the only day that was uncomfortable because it was so cold outside," Jennings said.

Several faculty members agreed that the warmer weather has been a key factor for keeping the buildings warm, but they are worried about what will happen if the outdoor temperature drops before the piping is fixed.

New exterminators assure annihilation

By JENNIFER HEIL
Staff Writer

Mounting concerns over food quality and roach problems in Vandenberg dining center have students calling for change and Marriott and residence halls administration attempting improvement.

The questionable quality of the food is one problem in Vandenberg — the other problems have been crawling around the kitchen and dining area.

Roaches have been spotted in the cafeteria walking up the walls and crawling out of food.

We realize there is a problem. If we even see one (roach) it's a problem," Dan Lis, assistant director of residence halls for finance and operations, said.

Lis said that the health department concluded after a visit that the cafeteria is not "infested," and gave the cafeteria "a good rating—87 out of 100."

The score is a general number used by the Oakland County health department that is determined by points deducted for violations, Bill Carlson of the Oakland County health department, said.

Points were deducted because the health department knew there was a bug problem, some cracks in the walls were found, and salad dressing that was just made was too warm, Ken Debelius, senior food service director, said.

Debelius is not certain how the problem started, but speculated that the roaches could have come from the recent removal of an old boiler above the cafeteria, infested vending machines, delivery trucks that transport boxes of food, or possibly from the dorm rooms above the cafeteria.

A new exterminating company, Eradico, has been hired to get rid of the roaches. Eradico did a "fogging" of the cafeteria area on October 18, and will return weekly for additional treatments.

The entire problem may be the result of the old exterminating company, Gold Star, not doing a thorough job, Thelma Walker, director for Vandenberg dining center, said.

"They left a bill and that was about it," Walker said.

Mark Patterson, an exterminator from Eradico, said that an initial inspection found "no sanitation problem whatsoever" in Vandenberg dining center.

"Ninety percent of the work is inspecting and looking for prob-

See ROACHES page 3

Oakland County incinerator to be decided by voters

By MARVA FLETCHER
Special Writer

Voters were asked to decide Tuesday whether Oakland County should spend up to $500 million on a comprehensive solid waster program including recycling and an incinerator.

County residents including students at OU produce nearly 3,700 tons of garbage each day. The county plan is supposed to recycle about half of that and burn or landfill the rest.

The corner stone of the plan is a $200 million waste-to-energy incinerator to be located on Brown Road west of Giddings Road in Auburn Hills. That incinerator, if approved by the state, will burn 2,000 tons of garbage per day and produce electricity to be sold to Detroit Edison. The facility will be built for the county by Westinghouse Energy Corp.

Controversy centers around the incinerator part of the plan. Opponents say the incinerator will pollute the air and raise taxes.

The city of Auburn Hills initially accepted $1 million and land for its Department of Public Works building in exchange for accepting the incinerator. But recently the City Council has pledged to oppose the

See BURN page 3

Committee off and running

By DEBORAH DZIEWIT
News Editor

The 15-member presidential search committee met for the first time Tuesday to officially open the search process.

An ad will run for four weeks in The Chronicle of Education, starting Nov. 6. Deadline for applications will be Dec. 9.

Faculty, administration and students can also nominate presidential candidates by sending in writing their choice to Rob Bunker, assistant general counsel to the Board of Trustees, said Larry Chunovich, chair of the search committee.

Once the applications are in, the committee will meet in early December to begin to narrow the list of candidates and to identify potential semi-finalists.

See SEARCH page 3