Staff News: Farewell to Keith Engwall

The Medical Library wishes a very fond farewell to Keith Engwall, Web and Emerging Technologies Librarian, who will be departing OUWB at the end of December. Keith started in July 2012 as a member of our inaugural Medical Library team tasked with building our technology infrastructure; rebuilding, redesigning, and maintaining our library website; and serving as a technology ambassador between the Medical Library, OU Libraries, and OUWB while sharing reference, instruction, and library liaison duties. For the past eight years, we have relied on his experience and expertise to improve our online presence and ensure continual, seamless access to our library resources and services while meeting the increasing needs of OUWB. Please join us in wishing him all the best! We will miss you, Keith, but as Taylor Houston's book says, "A truly great coworker is hard to find, difficult to part with, and impossible to forget."
