

Thursday, August 9, 2001

Counseling professionals learn the ropes at OU workshop

Participants in Oakland University's "Experiential Counseling Methods" are learning group counseling techniques using low- and high-challenge ropes course activities at Seaholm High School in Birmingham. The four-day workshop, sponsored by the School of Education and Human Services, concludes Thursday, August 9, at 5 p.m.

The seminar is designed for counselors, social workers, psychologists and other therapeutic professionals who work with groups. Most of the course is held on the ropes course and involves experiential learning. Participants develop their own personal leadership skills during the program.

Dennis D. Rozema, LPC, is the workshop leader. With more than 25 years of experience, he is well known for his work in the experiential education and counseling.

Program information is available online at the Department of Professional Development and Education Outreach Web site or by calling (248) 370-3033.

Oakland University is a comprehensive state-supported institution of higher education located in Oakland County, Michigan. The university has 110 bachelor's degree programs and 63 graduate degree and certificate programs. Dedicated to preparing learners for the 21st-century workplace and society, Oakland University is organized into the College of Arts and Sciences and the Schools of Business Administration, Education and Human Services, Engineering and Computer Science, Health Sciences, Nursing; and the Honors College.

SUMMARY

Participants in Oakland University's "Experiential Counseling Methods" are learning group counseling techniques using low- and high-challenge ropes course activities.

Created by CareTech Administrator (webservices@caretechsolutions.com) on Thursday, August 9, 2001
Modified by CareTech Administrator (webservices@caretechsolutions.com) on Thursday, August 9, 2001
Article Start Date: Friday, December 5, 2003