FITZGERALD HOUSE O.U.

Sept. 27, 1965

COMMITTEES TO FORM

This week Oakland's dormitory students will form their house committees. In Fitz the house committee will be comprised of one person from each floor, two Fitz Social Committee members (one from each wing), and the Fitz representative on Dorm Council, Mike Michalak. If one is interested in being on the Fitz House Committee they should place their name in nomination with the R.A. on their floor by twelve midnight, Wednesday, September 29th.

The Social Committee will be comprised of five members from Hill and Dorm Five (one person per floor), and two members from Fitz, Anibal, and Pryale (one person per wing).

Those interested in being on the Social Committee should place their name in nomination with either of the R.A's in their wing by twelve midnight, September 29th.

Elections will be held, Thursday, September 30th, sometime after dinner by the R.A's on each of the floors.

DORM COUNCIL PICKS OFFICERS

At the first meeting of the Dorm Council the following officers were elected; President, Dike Lewis, First Vice-President, Chuck Clark, Second Vice-President, Jean Gordon, Secretary, Colleen Lawson, and Treasurer, Ken Siver. Chuck Eagen was made an ex-officio member of the council and Bill Connellan was appointed public-relations man. The Council formed committees for; Saturday transportation, vending machines, selection of an adviser, Last Lecture series, and Men's Judiciary Board.

EDITORIAL

LET US CONTINUE --

Last year the men of Fitzgerald House had what could be termed very active house committee. The accomplishments of the committee were many and varied. The fireplace, Fitz Bitz, a pinochle tournament, a study room, night linen hours, sponsored dorm parties, and improved the selection of lounge magazines were the more outstanding contributions that helped to make dorm life more comfortable. Thus, it is our hope that this year we will have another active committee to continue the good work of the past.

SECOND LARGEST CIRCULATION ON CAMPUS!

Inquiring Reporter:

The question of the week is: What one thing would you change at Oakland if it were in your power to change it?

Doug Humer: Well...er...God!

Mel Kozek: Guys that don't flush the toilet behind themselves.

Les Krzak: Send the kitchen staff to Vietnam. We'd win!

Hal Shanafield: I would abolish women's hours.

Mark van Truslow: The money that's being spent on this damned mudhole out there and have it used for the library.

James Batchelor: The idiot inquiring reporter knocking on my door at 11:20 P.M.

Jan Jawarski (with the help of his roommate): Roomates.

John Monroe Hall: I would like to see private bathrooms installed so that one doesn't have to look at other's primeval ugliness.

Pete Gates: Chuck Eagen (the ~~██████████~~).

Doug Thorp: The coeds.

Gary Puffer: My sex life.

What's the matter, pookey? Are your troubles numbered among those of Mr. L. Bingo at right? Or maybe yours are a little more mundane?

Well, then, cheer up, junksy, for ol' Nita is the best advisor since Dieraeli. Ante Nita, schmitz.

N DINKLEBERRY T ADVICE

Dear Mrs. (new Oakland policy) Dinkleberry,

You just have to help me from the ostracism and laughter of my narrow-minded peers. They seem to think that I have some kind of superiority complex thoroughly drenched with illusions of immense grandeur. I think they're jealous of my bod and also of the fact that I was the only one who ran on a Transcendentalist ticket in the last popularity contest (I have naturally curly hair, you know).

I don't care for their friendship, I just want to lead them toward enlightenment for they are forever defecating on my philosophic universe. Thus, Mrs. Dinkleberry, I command you to advise this holy, wholely, holely soul as to what he should do about his sinning serfs.

Masochistically yours,
L. Bingo

Dear Mr. Bingo,

By the looks of things, it appears that people have been terribly unjust to His Sir Dingo. The only way to stop the rejection and laughter is to elevate yourself further above the plebian mob. This can be accomplished two ways: The first is at the end of a rope; the second is starting yourself on not (which is obviously what you've already done).

Don't worry about losing at the ballot box, at least Godot voted for you.

Sadistically yours,
Mrs. Nita

King of the Hill

by Nezzie Kicapoux

I walk in the dark
Afraid not at all
My very figure--
It seems to appal.

My clear dark eyes
Are filled with wisdom
I walk across campus
To survey my kingdom.

A panty- a bra - a slip I cry
Give me undies or I will die.

I get dates at every
Snap of my finger
Girls flock to me at every
Whir and whimper.

My home town admires me
They think I am so great
The girls all look at me
As a hopeful mate.

A panty - a bra - a slip I cry
Give me undies or I will die.

I stand on the world
To receive the cheers
My cup runneth over
With good cold beer.

I am the secure and
Mature campus male
I don't need kindness or
Love, much less tail.

A panty - a bra - a slip I cry
Give me panties or I will (sigh!)

Football

This week a Sunday football league will open its doors to applicants who wish to play.

A week league has also been established which consists of dorm teams and commuter districts. The south wing of Fitz is forming a team and still needs members.

A BALLAD OF KICAPOUX

Behold, I sing to you of Kicapoux
A poet of renown, champion of Right, this Nezzie Kicacoux joined
Fitz Bitz
To add new dimension to that tabloid
With tainted poetry and vicious wit.
To us he came, an outcast, wanderer,
waif, and
In search of piece, exhausted by ordeals
A traveler, without a cent; nor had he
A single copy of Property and Propriety in Ideas. Shameful!
A drop-out, he, of Shougnosh Sr. High,
Eagerly welcomed, with open arms, by
OU Admissions last May, and given
This school's first four-year full tuition
Scholarship. Nezzie, Poet Larreate
Of Disaffected Youth, now lives in style
In closets, under desks and chairs,
in Fitz,
Churning out poems and drinking Rythm.
Hail to Nezzie! our poet of poets!
