Grizz Facts: A look at evening credit hours

In 2017-18, 47 percent of graduate student credit hours were delivered during evening classes compared to 18 percent of undergraduate student credit hours that were. Over the past 15 years, total evening credit hour enrollment has dropped from approximately 28 percent of all student credit hours to about 20 percent. This reduction – primarily the result of declining undergraduate enrollment in evening classes – may be due to the growing popularity of online course offerings.
