

Monday, Nov 23, 2015

School of Health Sciences launches search for two faculty positions

The Health Sciences Program has launched two new faculty searches. Applications will be accepted through mid-December when the initial reviews will commence.

The first position is for an Assistant Professor with expertise in biostatistics to replace Dr. Jason Goldstick. View job posting for additional information.

The second position is for an Assistant Professor with expertise in Health Management and Policy. View job posting for additional information.

