Grizzly Days invites future students to campus

By Jeff Samoray, OU Web Writer

Many high school juniors and seniors know they want to go to college but are not sure how to select the school that's right for them. Those students and their families can learn all about Oakland University's academic offerings and student services at Grizzly Days on Thursday, March 11, or Tuesday, March 23, from 3 to 6 p.m. in the Oakland Center Banquet Rooms.

"Grizzly Days are perfect programs for those who are interested in finding out more about Oakland University," said Admissions Adviser Lisa Remsing. "Staff from the admissions office and different academic and student service departments will be on hand to answer all questions and introduce students to the university environment."

The program begins with a formal welcome to OU followed by campus tours given by current OU students. An academic resource fair, where attendees can meet representatives from academic and student service departments, will follow the tours. Students also can get advice about exploring their college options and learn about ACT prep workshops offered by OU. Light refreshments also will be offered.

There is no fee to attend Grizzly Days, but attendees must register by Friday, March 5. To reserve your spot, use OU's convenient online reservation system or contact the Office of Admissions at (248) 370-3360 or (800) OAK-UNIV.
