

Wednesday, March 6, 2002

Kresge Library receives historical collection

A former faculty member has donated close to 8,000 children's literature books along with a collection of toys, puppets and posters that together are valued at more than $100,000 to OU's Kresge Library.

The library will dedicate the Jane M. Bingham Historical Children's Literature Collection at a special ceremony in the library on Thursday, March 7, from 3 to 5 p.m.

Former School of Education and Human Services faculty member Jane Bingham, who recently retired from OU, donated the historical collection.

"The use of the collection will be important not only to the School of Education and Human Service, but to a variety of areas of the university since it has sociological, historical, psychological and other implications," said Elaine Didier, dean of Kresge Library.

SUMMARY

A former faculty member has donated close to 8,000 children's literature books along with a collection of toys, puppets and posters that together are valued at more than $100,000 to OU's Kresge Library.

Created by CareTech Administrator (webservices@caretechsolutions.com) on Wednesday, March 6, 2002

Modified by CareTech Administrator (webservices@caretechsolutions.com) on Wednesday, March 6, 2002

Article Start Date: Friday, September 12, 2003