Master of training and development program offered

Oakland University's School of Education and Human Services is offering a master of training and development program at the Macomb University Center in Clinton Township and at Seaholm High School in Birmingham beginning fall 2004. Registration is currently under way.

The program, which is designed to develop practitioners with the knowledge and skills required to enhance individual and organizational development and performance, has two paths to choose from:

- instructional design and technology;
- organizational development and leadership.

Graduates of the program will be qualified to work as human resource professionals, including directors of training centers, organizational development consultants, instructional designers and performance technologists. They will learn the skills necessary to be able to lead and support interventions and processes associated with diagnosing individual and organizational performance problems and opportunities, designing and implementing solutions, and evaluating results.

For more information on the program offered in Macomb, contact Pam Kellett at (586) 226-8462 or kellett@oakland.edu. For more information on the program offered at Seaholm High School, call (248) 370-4109 or e-mail Michael Long at mlong@oakland.edu.
