Pine will head HES

A respected teacher and author from the University of New Hampshire has been named dean of the School of Human and Educational Services at Oakland University.

Gerald J. Pine, 46, will begin his OU duties July 15 in a dual appointment, serving as dean and as professor of education with tenure.

"I am very pleased that the search process is completed," stated Frederick W. Obear, OU academic vice-president and provost.

"The search committee that was charged with most of the responsibility did an excellent job. They were asked to find three acceptable candidates, and they did that. Representatives from various constituencies feel that Dr. Pine was the individual on that list whose experiences, style, and orientation were best suited to the needs of the school and the university."

Obear said the choice was "not an easy one. The process took a long time, but the outcome justifies the effort. I am looking forward to working with Dr. Pine to build even stronger programs in education and human resources development."

Pine has been with the University of New Hampshire since 1966. He was chairperson of the Department of Education from 1972-78. He is a veteran of 16 years' experience in higher education, preceded by nine years of public school teaching and counseling.

He is the author of four books, Client-Centered Counseling in the Secondary School; The Counselor in the Schools; Expanding the Self: Personal Growth For Teachers; and Learner Centered Teaching.

Three of Pine's books have been translated, one into Korean and Japanese, one into Spanish, and one into Portuguese. In addition to his books, he has written numerous articles and monographs.

Pine has an A.B. (1955), an M. Ed. (1957), from Boston College and an Ed. D (1963) from Boston University. He is married and the father of three children.

Pine's wife Mary holds a Ph.D. from Boston University in early childhood and reading. She is currently an associate professor of education at the University of Southern Maine.

Pine replaces Laszlo J. Herenyi who had resigned from the School of Human and Educational Services (formerly the School of Education) to return to teaching. Herenyi later accepted the position of acting dean of the OU School of Performing Arts, a post he now holds.

Tuition, fees up for summer

Oakland University has adopted a split tuition policy for undergraduates and raised tuition on the undergraduate and graduate levels effective with the June 23 summer session.

The proposal approved by the Board of Trustees May 22 hikes tuition and fees 15 percent for graduate students and an average of 12.3 percent for undergraduates.

An average Michigan lower division undergraduate (freshman or sophomore) will now pay an additional $103 an academic year for a total of $1,034.75. A resident upper level student (junior or senior) pays an additional $126.25 a year for costs of $1,058.

The differential tuition recognizes the higher costs of upper division work and enables the university to remain more competitive with the community colleges during the first two years of instruction, university officials said.

Michigan resident undergraduate tuition is $30.25 a credit hour for lower division, up $3; $31 a credit hour for upper division students, an increase of $3.75; and graduates pay $44.25, an increase of $5.75.

Nonresident tuition went from $67 to $76 a credit hour for lower division students and from $67 to $78 for upper division work. Nonresident graduate tuition went to $90, an increase of $15.

The university increased the enrollment allocation fee from $10 to $15 and increased a range of applied music and competency credit fees.

University officials said the increases will result in approximately $1,200,000 in increased revenue for fiscal 1980-81, but will only partially offset expected decreases in the university's state appropriation for that period.

Board meets

The Oakland University Board of Trustees will meet Wednesday, June 18 at 7:30 p.m. in Lounge II of the Oakland Center.

OU awards top scholarships

The financial burden of a university education has been eased for seven area high school students and their families.

The students are winners of Oakland University's most prestigious scholarships with a combined value of $60,000 over the four undergraduate years.

Nancy Winfree of Warren and Lori LaVanway of St. Joseph have been named OU Foundation Scholars. Each student will receive $2,500 a year for four years.

Five students have earned the Mary Fogarty Anibal and Eleanor Anibal Burgum Memorial Scholarships of $2,000 a year for four years. Anibal-Burgum winners are Christopher Rohlman of Southfield, Mary Marson of Centerline, Michael Pradko of Utica, Mary Dynes of Rochester, and Susan Schult of Warren.

Camps open

Oakland University faculty and staff are reminded that there are still openings in the summer sports camps for their children. Summer sports camps are available in boys' basketball, girls' basketball, swimming, soccer, wrestling and golf. For more information call 377-3190.

The annual awards are made without regard to family income. Jerry Rose, director of admissions and scholarships, said the seven winners were chosen from 200 top candidates on the basis of academic record, national test scores, career objectives, and personal interviews.

The OU Foundation is comprised of individuals in southeastern Michigan who support the university and its programs. The Anibal-Burgum scholarships were established in 1974 by Benjamin H. Anibal in memory of his wife and daughter. Anibal designed the first Pontiac automobile, participated in the development of the first V-8 engine, and he is credited with many automotive engineering innovations that were adopted industry wide. Anibal, a Birmingham-Bloomfield Hills resident for more than 50 years, died in 1977 at the age of 90.

Student prize

Peter Jaber, a junior chemistry major, has won the grand prize in the National Alliance Francaise Essay Competition for college and university students.

He has won an all expense paid trip to Paris plus a scholarship and room and board for a month's study at the Alliance Francaise school in that city.

Jaber has had four years of French at Southfield High School, and he has been studying at OU with Norman Susskind. The student plans a career in medicine.

The essay subject was to pick a favorite time in French history. Jaber picked the reign of Louis XIV. He was sponsored locally by the French Institute of Detroit.

Ground breaking

Construction on 48 married student housing units is underway with a tentative completion date set for July 1, 1981.

The contract with Guaranteed Construction Company was signed May 5 and a formal ceremony held May 7 at the site with Interim President George T. Matthews as speaker.

The total cost of the project is $2,020,000. The majority of the financing comes from a $1,825,000 HUD loan.

Governor takes $214,021

Oakland University will lose $214,021 from its 1979-80 appropriation for the state's 1979-80 fiscal year ending Sept. 1.

The reduction recommended by Gov. William Milliken was accepted by the appropriations committees of the Michigan House and Senate on May 28.

The percentage reduction of slightly more than one percent of the current appropriation was the same for all state four year colleges and universities. The reduction is expected to come from the September state payments to those institutions.

The Executive Budget Committee of the university is studying the impact of the reduction order and continuing plans to try and save $100,000 from the university's fiscal year that ends June 30.

New comedy

William Shakespeare's "The Comedy of Errors" opens June 6 in the Barn Theatre. The Student Enterprise Theatre production follows the characters originally developed in the Commedia Del'Arte with stylized costumes, masks, clowns, and acrobatics. The work is staged as it would be done by an itinerant Italian circus troupe.

"The Comedy of Errors" will be performed June 6-7-8, 13-14, 15, and 20-21-22. Curtains are at 8:30 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays with 6:30 p.m. shows on Sundays. There are 2:30 p.m. Sunday matinees on June 15 and 22. Admission is $3.50 general and $2.50 for OU students. The matinees are 99 cents. For information call 377-2000.

Akers honored

Charles Akers, history, has been honored by the Quincy, Massachusetts Historical Society.

The OU professor was cited for his work on Abigail Adams: An American Woman. The book, published by Little, Brown and Company, is in its third printing. It is the first biography of Abigail Adams since the family papers were opened to historians. Akers says the book is the first work that views her as a person in her own right rather than as primarily the wife of one president and the mother of another.

During the Quincy visit Akers lectured to the historical society and he was guest at an author's party for the media, book-sellers, and the public.

The Akers book has received favorable reviews in publications ranging from the New York Times and Washington Post to New Republic and the New Yorker.

Durelli recognized

August J. Durelli, engineering, has been named winner of the 1980 Senior Research Award of the American Society for Engineering Education.

The award is based on Durelli's many accomplishments in research and in engineering education. Professor Durelli will receive a gold medal at the ASEE's 88th annual banquet June 25 in Agawam, Massachusetts.

The award is sponsored by General Electric Corporation. During a career of four decades he has established an international reputation for his work in experimental mechanics with emphasis on the areas of brittle coatings, photo-elasticity, and Moire methods.

Durelli is the author of four textbooks and several hundred articles and reports.

A native of Buenos Aires, Argentina, Durelli received a degree there in civil engineering and went on to Paris where he earned doctorates in both engineering (University of Paris, Sorbonne) and the social sciences (Catholic University of Paris).

In 1975 he was named to the John F. Dodge Chair of Engineering at OU. He is now Dodge professor emeritus. Durelli is a member of numerous professional organizations and a fellow of the New York Academy of Sciences and the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. The Universidad Autonoma Metro Politana of Mexico has named an experimental stress laboratory in his honor.

Gamefest planned

The program is sponsored by Metro Detroit Gamers. Students with an OUI.D. card will receive a 20 percent discount on admission. For further information contact the conference department or CIPO office.

Members of the OU community are invited to attend Michicon IX Gamefest June 6-8.

Morse is chairperson

Donald E. Morse, English, will become chairperson of the Department of Learning Skills effective Aug. 16. The appointment is for three years.

Morse replaces Peter G. Evarts who will return to teaching. In addition, Evarts will conduct workshops for high school teachers in the Early College Study Program with Andover and Lahser High Schools.

Professor Morse has taught over 30 different undergraduate and graduate courses. His areas of specialization include James Joyce, Irish literature and history since the famine, satire, British drama of the 18th and 20th centuries, modern and contemporary drama, and fantasy.

In addition to his teaching and publications, Morse plans and directs the summer institutes in Ireland. Morse is vice-president of the College English Association.
