

Monday, January 22, 2001

OU hosts seminar on behavioral interview techniques

Oakland University will host a seminar on behavioral interviews presented by Ron Kotz, manager of Recruitment and Development for Corporate Personnel for DaimlerChrysler Corporation, on January 23 from 5 to 6 p.m. in Room 127 of the Oakland Center.

"We are very happy to have Ron Kotz present to the students skills on behavioral interviewing, which is growing in popularity in today's workplace," said Judy Robinson placement coordinator for Oakland University's Placement and Career Services. "After attending this seminar, students will be more prepared for a behavioral interview and will have greater insight into key interviewing techniques."

Behavioral interviews give employers a better understanding of how prospective employees' past behavior in certain situations predict what their future behavior will be.

The seminar is part of OU's Placement and Career Services Career Prep Week, which runs January 22-26.

SUMMARY

Oakland University will host a seminar on behavioral interviews presented by Ron Kotz, manager of Recruitment and Development for Corporate Personnel for DaimlerChrysler Corporation, on January 23 from 5 to 6 pm in Room 127 of the Oakland Center.

Created by CareTech Administrator (webservices@caretechsolutions.com) on Monday, January 22, 2001

Modified by CareTech Administrator (webservices@caretechsolutions.com) on Monday, January 22, 2001

Article Start Date: Tuesday, November 25, 2003