

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Edith Diggory

Edith Diggory, as a teacher of voice is said to have the gift of treating each singer as a whole person, mentoring each to achieve increasing levels of artistic maturity through a skillful combination of discipline, intellect and compassion.

Diggory, adjunct professor of music, is generous in sharing her vast knowledge of music performance, and to artfully motivate your students to build on their strengths in order to achieve their fullest potential.

SUMMARY

Edith Diggory, as a teacher of voice is said to have the gift of treating each singer as a whole person, mentoring each to achieve increasing levels of artistic maturity through a skillful combination of discipline, intellect and compassion.

Created by CareTech Administrator (webservices@caretechsolutions.com) on Thursday, April 18, 2002

Modified by CareTech Administrator (webservices@caretechsolutions.com) on Thursday, April 18, 2002

Article Start Date: Monday, November 10, 2003